NEWS & DOCUMENTARY EMMYS®

LETTER FROM THE CHAIRMAN

Good evening!

On behalf of the National Academy of Television Arts & Sciences, its Trustees and our 18,000+ members across the nation, welcome to the 44th Annual News & Documentary Emmy® Awards, again this year from the Palladium in New York's iconic Times Square.

As someone who has worked in both journalism and in documentary filmmaking during my career, this annual NATAS celebration is among my personal favorites. There has never been a time when the need for fact-based, objective journalism and hard-hitting, thoughtful documentaries has been greater, nor a time when excellence in these genres has been more deserving of note, honor and celebration.

In addition to celebrating our Emmy® nominees and award-winners tonight, we will also honor two of our industry's greats with our Academy's Lifetime Achievement Awards: anchor/journalist Wolf Blitzer of CNN, and documentary director/producer Barbara Kopple.

More than 2,300 productions were submitted for Emmy® consideration this year; they were evaluated by a pool of more than 1,000 peer professionals, whose votes determined tonight's honorees. A special 'thank you' goes out to those volunteer voters, for the time and talents they bring to our process every year. I would also ask you to join me in thanking our Emmy® Academy's staff for all their hard work in organizing and staging each year's News and Documentary Emmy® Awards; it is truly a remarkable undertaking.

Whether you are joining us in person or participating remotely via any of our web streaming applications, we welcome you to this annual celebration of the very best in news and documentary television.

Good luck to all of this evening's nominees and, once again, thank you all for being members of this important community.

Terry O'Reilly
Chairman
Board of Trustees
The National Academy of Television Arts & Sciences

LETTER FROM THE PRESIDENT

Welcome back to the "crossroads of the world" as we celebrate the remarkable achievements of those journalists and documentarians who bring that world to within arm's reach. The News & Documentary Emmy® Awards honor excellence in capturing truth and the essence of our shared global experience — live as it happens, and through the many lenses of perspective.

Few individuals epitomize this spirit as well as our Lifetime Achievement honorees this year: Wolf Blitzer, who has been at the front lines of CNN's coverage of every major event "happening now" over the last thirty years; and Barbara Kopple, whose work has cast the critical documentary lens at the core of the American experience itself.

We are also inducting 14 members to our Gold & Silver Circle society. Together, these honorees have contributed more than five centuries of collective service to our industry, including countless hours of mentorship and support for the next generation. Through ever-changing times, the leadership of Wolf, Barbara, and these Gold & Silver Circle inductees continues to raise the bar of excellence.

The herculean task of administering the News & Documentary competition — managing a process that begins in the spring with thousands of entries, marches on through the summer months of judging, and concludes with envelopes opening on stage — falls to our David Winn and Christine Chin. Lisa Armstrong leads our production team to then produce the two back-to-back shows celebrating the honorees.

Please join me in thanking David, Christine, Lisa, and the entire NATAS staff and crew for all that they do to make these nights so special.

Enjoy the ceremonies!

PHOTO: CNN

Wolf Blitzer is a 33-year veteran of CNN, where he has anchored The Situation Room with Wolf Blitzer for the past 18 years. Every weekday, Blitzer provides in-depth coverage of all things breaking, political and international. Here, in the words of two of his colleagues — who are also friends and fans — is a rare, intimate look at the man viewers have trusted for decades.

REPUTATION FOR EXCELLENCE

By Tom Johnson

If there ever has been a reporter or anchor in our profession whose reputation for excellence exceeds that of Wolf Blitzer, it is very difficult for me to name one. Walter Cronkite, Bernard Shaw and Judy Woodruff first come to mind.

Having served as a judge of Emmys, Pulitzers, and Peabodys, I know how difficult it can be to select one nominee for the Lifetime Achievement Award that the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences will present to Wolf.

However, I believe the choice will be universally praised by his colleagues, his competitors, his interviewees, and even leaders who are known for their unhappiness with media.

Wolf built his reputation in print journalism and in television news. He always exemplifies accuracy, fairness and responsibility in his field reporting and in his anchoring roles.

During my eleven years as CEO of CNN Worldwide, Wolf's family and my family established close personal and professional friendships. That was strengthened when their daughter Ilana chose Emory University for her undergraduate studies. Lynn and Wolf made multiple parental trips to Atlanta where Edwina and I invited them to stay in our home.

Now, it is factual that Wolf generally is thoughtful and collegial. However, he also can be tough when necessary. In a recent CNN interview with Israeli Prime Minister Netanyahu, Wolf found it necessary to interrupt the Prime Minister several times in a heated debate over politically incendiary judicial reforms. In 2020, Wolf and House Speaker Nancy Pelosi engaged in a heated exchange when Wolf politely but repeatedly pressed Pelosi about her approach to the coronavirus stimulus package. In another interview, Wolf told President Trump, "We (the press) are not the enemy of the people."

I am proud to have approved several of Wolf's assignments during his 33 years at CNN, including naming him Pentagon correspondent during the 1991 War in the Gulf and senior CNN White House correspondent during the Clinton Presidency.

As a child of Holocaust survivors, Wolf works tirelessly to combat antisemitism and to educate the world about the truth regarding the Holocaust.

Reporter, international correspondent, anchor, husband, father and my friend, I never have known a finer person in my life. Wolf, congratulations on this well-deserved honor.

THE LEGEND

By John King

The legend the world trusts in times of joy and crisis is a man of unrivaled grace and fairness.

A funny man. A family man. A gentle man.

We first met as competitors, when Wolf came to Little Rock after the 1992 election to cover then Governor Bill Clinton's transition to the White House. Five years later, I joined CNN as a White House correspondent and got to see firsthand, up close, the unassuming and indefatigable curiosity of a man I am proud to call colleague and beyond blessed to call friend.

You may not see a lot of open passion from Wolf Blitzer the TV anchor. He is old school in the chair, in all of the best and cherished ways.

But you see it off camera. As a husband and father and grandfather. And as a fan of all things Buffalo.

I have been inches from Wolf at too many times of stress and crisis. I have never seen him rattled. Never heard him speak ill of anyone. Nor, in 27 years now at CNN, have I heard anyone speak ill of him.

Instead, from top to bottom, what you hear and see are stories and examples of kindness, mentorship and encouragement.

"Trustworthy, loyal and a die-hard optimist," is how his current Situation Room executive producer, Emily Atkinson, describes Wolf.

Consistency is a Blitzer calling card.

"He leads by his deeds, how well he treats his colleagues and the respect he shows our viewers," says Eric Sherling, now a top CNN executive but just 27 when Wolf tapped him to be an EP more than two decades ago.

Fairness is the reporter's most essential tool. Wolf's is unshakeable.

Cruel history powers some of it. Wolf and longtime friend and colleague Dana Bash traveled to Poland this year for the 80th anniversary of the Warsaw ghetto uprising and made an emotional visit to Auschwitz, where both lost relatives.

Wolf never forgets that horror. But he also carries forward the stubborn hope and optimism of survivors like his parents. They made roots in Buffalo and raised a diehard Bills fan who for all his personal success is always guided by the history and struggle in his bloodstream. "He understands innately that every day is a gift," is how Bash puts it "One can draw a direct line between the combination of tragedy and survival to his sense of purpose and his passion."

In a business full of supersized egos and personalities, Wolf is a steady, humble unifying force — a trusted voice who reminds us every day that kindness is life's most valuable currency, and that quiet dignity sets the most powerful example. ●

BARBARA KOPPLE

by Scott Huver

"I'm a curious person, and I feel that I really want to know somebody," ventures the acclaimed documentarian Barbara Kopple — now adding the title of Lifetime Achievement Honoree at the 44th Annual News & Documentary Emmy® Awards to the long list of accolades she's accumulated over the course of a career spanning over five decades — as to why her vocation has been so ideally suited to her.

"I want to make [the subjects] feel as comfortable as they possibly can, and allow them to bloom, and to be who they are and what they are," she says. "And it's so fascinating and interesting what people want to say if just given the opportunity...I just feel like it's a treasure chest. Every time you go out you don't know, really, what you're going to get or what you expect. And suddenly, people just blossom and they're so alive and they're so incredible. It's just a really sensational thing that happens."

Kopple made her mark with her directorial debut in 1976, Harlan County U.S.A., in which she and her crew were deeply embedded in a Kentucky coal miners' strike for several years, revealing the hopes and struggles of a working-class community embroiled in a simmering, and near-violent, confrontation with a powerful energy company. The film won the Academy Award for Best Documentary, a triumph she'd repeat with another workers' rights saga, 1990's American Dream, becoming the first woman director to win the Oscar in that category twice.

From there she would continue to craft enlightening and eye-opening documentaries on an array of disparate, complex subjects, from female journalists covering the Gulf War (Bearing Witness), the Iran hostage crisis (Desert One) and the contrastive Woodstock festivals of 1969 and 1994 (My Generation) to unique, intimate and often previously unexplored facets of public figures, including Mike Tyson (the Emmy® nominated Fallen Champ: The Untold Story of Mike Tyson), Woody Allen (Wild Man Blues), the Dixie Chicks (Shut Up and Sing) and the family of Ernest Hemingway (Running From Crazy).

Kopple says by immersing herself so deeply in the lives and worlds of her subjects, her singular documentary approach is something quite distinctive from traditional journalism. "I think that if I regarded myself as anything, it would be a humanist, that I care so much — not that journalists don't — about every person that I film. They become part of me, and I have the leisure to be there with them, whether it's days, weeks, months, or years, to really even find one small thing that says so much about them and so much about the situation that they're in."

Frequently Kopple has entered a project believing that her subject would be one thing, only to discover an entirely unexpected and even more compelling angle during the filming process; it's a discovery she's always embraced. "You can research it and think about it all you want, but what you're dealing with is real life, you never know what's around each corner or what's going to happen," she says. "That's the delight and the challenge of it, is having all these fabulous things happen that are so unexpected."

"It's not all about the talking — it's also about watching them and watching them in hard situations and easy situations, and sometimes you get real treasures," she says of her process, recalling how in the making of Running From Crazy, in which actress Mariel Hemingway and her family explored their clan's generational history of struggles with mental health, depression, addiction and suicide, Kopple discovered an unknown treasure trove of revealing footage shot by and featuring Mariel's sister, actress and model Margaux, who like their novelist grandfather had ultimately ended her own life.

"It just made the film so much more rich and so much more complex," recalls Kopple of showing the final cut to Mariel, who didn't know the footage had been found, "or even that this footage existed...[when] Margaux came into it, she just burst into tears and loved everything that she was saying. And it just changed her and changed me and everything so much."

The television medium, she says, has long been a boon to showcase her work. "There's no set pattern as to where these films are going to show — I mean, I just do them, and sometimes I'm lucky and people will call up and say, 'How would you like to do a film on Mike Tyson?' That showed on NBC, and it was pretty cool, because I heard that people got together and watched it, and it was one of the first long-form documentaries that actually got on primetime TV. So TV means a lot to me, and it means so many people will get to see it."

Kopple finds today's explosion of documentary content and the multitude of platforms delivering such films and programs is an “incredible” culmination of the filmmaker’s long-held dreams. “I never knew in my lifetime whether it would happen,” she marvels, “and it’s built out there a real family and a real community of filmmakers that are just doing fantastic work and allowing people to see other cultures, other ideas, other ways of making choices.”

Behind the camera, each project, no matter how dramatically different from others she’s helmed, makes a profound impact on her. “It makes me a deeper, richer, fuller person when I come out of it,” she explains. “I have another entity to my family, in some respect, of people who, no matter how long we’re away from each other, whenever we see each other again, it’s like starting over. And I’m able to see so many different cultures, and so many different ways that people deal with things and feel about things, from South Sudan to Beverly Hills.”

Even with films that gestate for years and draw from countless hours and require even more weeks and months in the editing room, Kopple says that she’s never seen her work as an exercise in patience. “It wasn’t patience — it was total joy for me!” she admits. “And sitting in an editing room is fascinating, seeing all the bits and pieces starting to come together to tell a story.” For her, it’s all worth it if she sheds light on the essential truths at the core of her subject’s stories. “That’s the biggest beacon: getting to their truth. I wouldn’t want to have anything else in the film if it wasn’t who they were and what they were about, and their truth.” ●

INTERNATIONAL EMMY® AWARDS FOR NEWS & CURRENT AFFAIRS

Nominees this year, you begin to see how serious the situation has become. Of the four News Nominees, one is in recognition

The International Emmys® for News and Current Affairs are presented to outstanding television journalists and programs from around the world. Tonight is another fine celebration, but these are not easy days for our fellow journalists. We are all aware of the high-profile arrests in various totalitarian countries, but if you of the two deaths in Brazil: Bruno Pereira, a Brazilian researcher of Indigenous culture, and Dom Phillips a British journalist. A correspondent for Al Jazeera, Shireen Abu Akleh, went out to do a story on a refugee camp and never made it back. She was shot dead on the scene.

In the News category and in the Current Affairs category many helpless civilians are the victims of wartime atrocities. These terrible cases underline how much war and misery there is in the world and how close to home it lurks.

2023 NEWS NOMINEES

THE BATTLE FOR BUCHA AND IRPIN SKY NEWS, UNITED KINGDOM

This news coverage starts on March 5th, 2022 as the brutal battles for Bucha and Irpin began, when Russian troops attempted to surround Kyiv. Civilians were bombed out of their homes leaving many with no choice but to escape. And others, including Sky’s own journalists, were targeted in their cars.

BEYOND ENEMY LINE TV4 NEWS, SWEDEN

Correspondent Stefan Borg and cameraman Felix Larno went to Donetsk City and Mariupol in Russia-occupied territory and reported on the war from the other side of the front line.

JORNAL NACIONAL AND FANTÁSTICO: THE MURDER OF BRUNO AND DOM GLOBO, BRAZIL

A Brazilian researcher of Indigenous culture, Bruno Pereira, and British journalist, Dom Phillips, were killed in Indigenous territory in the Javari Valley in the Amazon. Globo shows the investigation and the search for the men’s bodies. The crime exposed the government’s environmental policies.

SHIREEN ABU AKLEH’S KILLING AL JAZEERA ENGLISH, QATAR

On May 11, Al Jazeera correspondent Shireen Abu Akleh’s went to the Jenin refugee camp to report on an Israeli raid. She never made it back: Abu Akleh was shot dead on the scene. Her legacy lives on globally, while demands for a transparent investigation of her death erupted around the world.

2023 CURRENT AFFAIRS NOMINEES

EXPOSURE: THE CROSSING DAVID MODELL PRODUCTIONS, UNITED KINGDOM

More than 30 asylum seekers perished trying to cross the sea from France to Britain on an inflatable boat. Both countries’ governments blamed the victims, the youngest of whom was just 7. Investigating what exactly happened and who was on board, The Crossing reveals the truth about who was responsible.

GLOBONEWS DOCUMENTARY: SHELTER - INNOCENTS UNDER FIRE GLOBONEWS / GLOBO, BRAZIL

Filmed over the first 3 months of the war in Ukraine, Shelter sheds light on the often forgotten protagonists in a conflict: those who are heavily harmed despite being far from the battlefields — like women who give birth in improvised underground hospitals.

LAST STOP BEFORE KYIV UVDA LTD. / KESHET MEDIA GROUP, ISRAEL

Under the laws of war, civilians should be protected. But in Ukraine, it looks like they were targeted. As Russian troops withdraw, the brutality of their occupation is revealed. Liberated areas become crime scenes. Some were killed or left for dead. Others were tortured or held captive.

UKRAINE, WARTIME DIARIES TRT WORLD / OFF THE GRID, TURKEY

It is the battle of their lives — a battle they cannot lose: Documentary filmmaker, Itai Anghel, and Photographer, Eddie Gerald, spent weeks with the people of Ukraine, standing strong against the Russian invasion in Kyiv, a nation fighting for survival. This is a report on resilience and hope.

NEWS PRESENTERS

YOUSUR AL-HLOU

THE NEW YORK TIMES

Yousur Al-Hlou is a senior video journalist at The New York Times, where she has worked since 2015. Yousur's work has mostly centered on culture and conflict in the Middle East, from the first female elections in Saudi Arabia, to cultural shifts among youth in Egypt, to potential war crimes committed by the Assad regime in Syria and to the effects of Israeli airstrikes in Gaza. Her recent investigative reporting from Ukraine — centered around potential war crimes committed by Russian soldiers and the failures of President Putin's war — has received numerous awards, including a Polk, Murrow and the Pulitzer Prize.

ELLISON BARBER

NBC NEWS

Ellison Barber is a NBC Correspondent, focused on domestic and international breaking news. She joined NBC News in 2020 and reported extensively on the COVID-19 pandemic, social and political turmoil in the US, and the war in Ukraine. Barber was the first NBC reporter to break the news that rioters had breached the US Capitol security barricades and was live on-air with Lester Holt as the east side of the Capitol came under attack. Her work that day was part of the NBC Special Report that won the 2022 Emmy for Outstanding Live Breaking News Coverage. She has most recently reported on the war in Ukraine, spending a total of five months covering the war and highlighting the human toll.

SAM FEIST

CNN

San Feist is CNN's Washington bureau chief and senior vice president. The founding Executive Producer of The Situation Room, Feist has also overseen political programs from Crossfire to Inside Politics to The Capital Gang, and others. Feist helped CNN earn a Peabody Award for election coverage in 2008. Feist is a member of the Council on Foreign Relations, The Washington Economic Club, and the Bar of the District of Columbia. He serves on the boards of the National Press Club Journalism Institute, the George Washington University School of Media and Public Affairs, and the Georgetown University Institute of Politics & Public Service.

NORAH O'DONNELL

CBS NEWS

Norah O'Donnell is the anchor and managing editor of the CBS Evening News. She also anchors all of CBS News Election Specials and is a 60 MINUTES contributing correspondent. O'Donnell is a multiple Emmy Award-winning journalist with nearly three decades of experience. She has covered six presidential elections and interviewed every living President of the United States. O'Donnell is the only woman to anchor an evening news broadcast.

JOHN QUIÑONES

ABC NEWS

John Quiñones is an ABC News correspondent who reports across 20/20, Nightline and Good Morning America. During his 40-year tenure at ABC News, he has reported extensively for all programs and platforms and served as anchor of What Would You Do? and Primetime. Recently, Quiñones has been on the frontlines of ABC News' Uvalde: 365 series, reporting from Uvalde, Texas, on the aftermath of the mass shooting at Robb Elementary. For 20/20, Quiñones extensively reported on Fort Hood soldier Vanessa Guillen, who was brutally murdered and sparked a #MeToo movement in the military. Quiñones joined ABC News in June 1982 as a general assignment correspondent based in Miami. He was one of the few American journalists reporting from Panama City during the U.S. invasion in December 1989.

JOHANA SUÁREZ

NOTICIAS TELEMUNDO

Johana Suárez is an Emmy award-winning journalist and anchor at Noticias Telemundo. Suárez has been recognized with fourteen regional Emmy awards during her time as an anchor and reporter in Los Angeles, northern California and Texas. Prior to joining Telemundo, Suárez recently served as an anchor and reporter at Univision's KUVN 23 in Dallas. She previously worked for the Telemundo-owned station in Los Angeles. Suárez also spent eight years as an anchor and reporter at Univision's KUVS in Sacramento.

PEDRO ULTRERAS

UNIVISION

A Mexican journalist with more than 25 years of experience in television in the United States, Pedro Ultreras has specialized in news about immigration issues and is often seen reporting along the borders between Mexico and the United States, Guatemala and Mexico, or the rest of Central America. Ultreras has been nominated for multiple Emmy Awards and in 2018 was recognized with the National Journalism Award in Mexico. Ultreras has worked as a correspondent for the Univision network for the past ten years and resides in the city of Miami.

CLARISSA WARD

CNN

Clarissa Ward is CNN's multi-award winning chief international correspondent based in London. She has spent nearly two decades reporting from front lines in Syria, Iraq, Afghanistan, Egypt and Ukraine for CNN, ABC, CBS and Fox News. Clarissa is the recipient of multiple awards for her journalism, including nine Emmy Awards, two George Foster Peabody Awards, three Alfred I. duPont-Columbia Awards, two Edward R. Murrow Awards and a George Polk Award. She is the author of On All Fronts: The Education of a Journalist, which details her singular career as a conflict reporter. In the last year Clarissa has spent more than five months in Ukraine covering Russia's invasion. She reported extensively from Afghanistan on life under Taliban control, a story she covered live on the streets of the capital as it played out in August 2021. She speaks fluent French and Italian, conversational Russian, Arabic and Spanish and basic Mandarin.

2023 NEWS & DOCUMENTARY GOLD AND SILVER CIRCLE INDUCTEES

NEWS & DOCUMENTARY EMMYS®

SILVER CIRCLE – NEWS

Tonight's inductees in the Gold & Silver Circle have set standards of achievement we all hope to emulate. A professional society of honor, and one of the highest tributes bestowed by NATAS, the Gold Circle recognizes professionals who have performed distinguished service within the television industry for at least 50 years. Silver Circle inductees are recognized for their enduring contributions over 25 years or more. These individuals are selected for more than their longevity — they have made an indelible impact on the vitality of our industry and those who work in it every day.

GOLD CIRCLE – NEWS

Before he became a legend on the Pentagon beat, David Martin proved himself a news-division lead among an iconic team of correspondents and producers.

Martin turned a research job into off-camera reporting on the Calley court martial trial following the My Lai Massacre. In April 1970, he was at the helm at the bureau in Houston while the rest of the team took the night off to attend an Earth Wind and Fire concert at the Astrodome. When news broke of Apollo 13's oxygen situation, the "kid" left in charge took quick action. Martin got to the right person at the Astrodome to post "CBS News, Call Your Office" on the scoreboard.

Martin went on to cover the Pentagon for 40 years, covering stories from the invasions of Grenada and Panama, Desert Storm, Blackhawk Down, 9-11, and the killing of Osama bin Laden, to the invasions of Iraq and Afghanistan. He has coupled incisive reporting with expressive writing, and never losing sight of the humanity he brings to each project.

JOHN QUIÑONES

When John Quiñones was 13 years old in San Antonio, his father lost his job and the family turned to migrant farming to make ends meet. They traveled to Michigan to pick cherries and then to Ohio to harvest tomatoes. "I'll never forget being on my knees on the cold, hard ground at six o'clock in the morning, looking at a row of tomato plants," he says. "For a 13-year-old boy's eyes, that seemed to go on for miles and miles. My father Bruno asked me, 'Juanito, do you want to do this for the rest of your life or do you want to get a college education?' And to me, it was a no-brainer."

Quiñones' reporting has taken him to Central America for the political and economic turmoil in Argentina, to El Salvador for its civil war. He went undercover with a hidden camera to reveal how clinics performed unnecessary surgical procedures as part of a major nationwide insurance scam, following along with a group of would-be Mexican immigrants as they attempted to cross into the U.S. via the treacherous route known as "The Devil's Highway."

His hidden camera work was the inspiration for, What Would You Do? It is the kind of journalism Quiñones has never tired from — watching an everyday hero stand up for a stranger. The reporting of John Quiñones is a road map, illuminating his firm belief that journalism is, "the candle in the darkness."

DAN RATHER

Throughout his career, Dan Rather has been a key player in the evolution of news television. He has covered every major event that has chronicled the history of the world over seven decades. Interviewing every American president since Dwight Eisenhower, his tough-as-nails style is recognized and respected by presidents, dignitaries, and audiences alike.

In 1961, Rather was named news director of KHOU, a CBS affiliate, after a few stints of reporting for Associated Press and United Press International. It was with KHOU where the public took note of his dedication to reporting, during the carnage of Hurricane Carla. One year later, Rather was hired as Chief of the CBS News Southwest Bureau in Dallas, where he was the first reporter on the ground during the assassination of President John F. Kennedy. His demeanor and style of honest reporting won him accolades and a promotion to White House Correspondent.

In 1981, Rather took over the anchor chair for the CBS Evening News, a post he held for 24 years. His reporting for 60 Minutes and later, 48 Hours, solidified Rather as a tough-as-nails interviewer and the then-face of CBS News.

Celebrating his 91st birthday next month, Rather is the President and CEO of News and Guts, an independent production company. He also reaches audiences through his blog, newsletter, and millions of followers on X.

STEVE FASTOOK

Over the course of his 37-year career, Steve Fastook has worked on the line as an engineer, tech manager and director, but has truly set himself apart as a business leader. Currently, Steve is the Senior Vice President of Operations at CNBC, where he leads a team of more than 200 broadcast professionals.

Starting as a broadcast engineer for NBC, Fastook has helped shape every flavor of broadcasting. From the Olympic Games, to the Super Bowl, presidential inaugurations, to Another World and Saturday Night Live, from Late Night with Conan O'Brien, Dateline, Nightly News with Tom Brokaw, to The Macy's Thanksgiving Parade, Fastook's ability to adapt and work on these varied shows is truly exceptional.

An Adjunct Professor of Television Production at Montclair State University, Fastook mentors and shapes future broadcasters with his capstone course in production. He also sits on the board of the International Radio and Television Society, an organization dedicated to enhancing the education of future media leaders. He will always go out of his way to sit with anyone seeking his advice. From people just starting their careers to senior leadership, Fastook is well known for taking time out of his day to offer his insight and guidance.

KIM GODWIN

Kim Godwin is the first Black woman to serve as network news president, overseeing the editorial and business operations for broadcast, digital, streaming and audio news across the ABC News.

Within the walls of ABC News, Godwin has built a more diverse talent and senior executive team that better reflects and represents the communities ABC News serves. She is a champion for diversity. She has promoted and hired more than seven women into executive positions. She also gave an opportunity to an employee to be the first female director during ABC News' Election Night coverage, and that night's coverage went on to be #1 in the ratings. She has greatly diversified content on all platforms, including broadening the Emmy® Award-winning Soul of a Nation franchise, with 13 primetime and Hulu specials in the past two years alone pegged to Juneteenth, PRIDE Month, Hispanic Heritage Month, AANHPI Heritage Month and Black History Month.

Godwin makes it a priority to guide and encourage aspiring journalists and students to achieve their full potential, in journalism or whatever their chosen path might be. During her senior year at Florida A&M University, she had three jobs and a full-time class schedule. One included volunteering at a local ABC affiliate which hired her and launched her career. During her more-than 37-year career, she's worked for 10 news stations in nine cities and all three national broadcast networks.

Godwin often says her four superpowers are: resilience, optimism, excellence and a smile.

RAND MORRISON

Rand Morrison joined CBS News in 1982 as a writer and, later, as a producer. Over the years, he has produced acclaimed documentaries for CBS News Productions, and served in management positions for 48 Hours, Public Eye with Bryant Gumbel and Eye to Eye with Connie Chung.

With a master's degree from Northwestern University's Medill School of Journalism, Morrison started as a writer for the AP and UPI, where he honed his craft. Today he preaches good writing and remains a stickler for accuracy, originality, proper grammar, and reporting from original sources.

As Executive Producer of CBS Sunday Morning, he has been able to address important issues of the day, focusing on the people, places and things that enlighten and elevate the human spirit. Under his leadership, Sunday Morning changed with the changing times, always looking for new ways to bring viewers stories about the arts, history and culture as well as breaking news. Morrison has taken risks and invited new commentators to share their sometimes controversial opinions about current issues. In an era of shrinking broadcast viewership, Morrison's singular vision has resonated with viewers, nearly doubling the Sunday Morning audience.

Morrison has a keen eye for emerging talent. Throughout his 41 years at CBS, he has been a champion of student interns and entry level employees, always taking time to meet with them and share his depth of knowledge and experience. He has regularly conducted summer writing workshops for large groups of interns at CBS News and has spoken to students at universities — most notably Ohio State, where he earned his undergraduate degree in English in the early 1970s. Moreover, he pays close attention to these students during their internships and has eventually hired many of them, who have since been promoted throughout the ranks at CBS News.

STEVE OSUNSAMI

Over more than 26 years of reporting for ABC News, Steve Osunsami's body of work has brought viewers important stories that speak to the experiences of minority populations in America. In 2020, he paid particular attention to the many ways the pandemic was disproportionately impacting people of color. After seeing one of his many COVID crisis reports on World News Tonight with David Muir, a group of volunteers organized a movement to send tractor trailers to farms across the United States. Moved by this report, the truckers crisscrossed America, and delivered fresh food to lower income black and brown neighborhoods, in cities where the need was greatest.

Osunsami's career in broadcast journalism began in his home state of Illinois in 1993. While working at a local station in Michigan in 1995, he reported on a story that brought about change to state law. At the time, when gun violence victims in poor neighborhoods were assisted by local ambulance services, the wounded were always driven past the community's best trauma facility, and onto a charity hospital many miles across town. They were usually black, usually children, and they usually died. After Osunsami's report, lawmakers decided that EMT's would instead take victims to the "closest, most appropriate hospital" unless family said otherwise — a law that stands to this day.

He has interviewed President Jimmy Carter twice — most recently two years ago, in what has now become the former president's final on-camera interview. The Carters personally selected him for that special report. He helped deliver a revealing and personal look into the long-lasting relationship between Jimmy and Rosalyn Carter. It was truly a broadcast love letter for their 75th anniversary. Mrs. Carter was so moved — by both the special, and by the cake Steve actually baked and brought to them for that interview — that she sent him a beautiful thank you card.

Osunsami openly shares his own personal story with viewers, with staff, and with the people whose stories he tells. People share with him in ways they don't do with reporters who aren't as forthcoming. He is openly gay and a cancer survivor. Born a child of poverty, he is a proud "Head Start" kid who has become a mentor to many. There are many thriving producers and reporters in this business because of the kindness and guidance he has shown them.

OTTO PADRON

Otto Padron is President and CEO of Meruelo Media, with a broadcast portfolio that holds some of the most institutional brands in southern California. He formerly headed programming for each of the major U.S. Spanish language networks: Univision and Telemundo. His unique media experience brings to every project he's developed a rich perspective and matchless insight into the Hispanic viewer profile, content, and cultural preferences.

As a young Cuban immigrant growing up in the US, Otto formed an early and passionate bond with Hispanic media. He began his media career back in 1982 at a small production house and ad agency in South Miami, where he had to do everything from writing and shooting to sweeping the floors. His formal television network career would begin after he completed his active military service in 1992. Padron took a blend of creativity combined with hard military organizational skills to conceptualize, write, produce and execute multiple programs.

Padron is a retired US Army Colonel with more than 38 years of military service in the active Army, National Guard and Reserve. He served during three wars: The Cold War, The Gulf War and Operation Iraqi Freedom. In 2006, as Head of Programming for the Univision TV Network, Otto was called to active duty to serve in combat in Iraq. During back-to-back combat tours, as an infantry officer he was given the additional duty to re-build the local Mosul TV Station. For the next 12 months, he found himself moonlighting at al-Mosoullia TV on the West Side of Mosul, helping rebuild its transmitters, downlinks and control room.

Padron conceived, shaped, formed, and currently operates Meruelo Media, Los Angeles — the most diverse Super Cluster in the Nation, with a carefully curated and culturally unique multilingual collection of brands.

THOMAS SNOWDEN

Thomas Snowden has been an editor and video trainer with NBC for 26 years. Beginning his career "on tape" and later transitioning to digital editing, Snowden mainly edits for Nightly News with Lester Holt, where he cuts 250 stories a year. Most of the stories air in the A-block under a tight deadline.

In addition to being a highly-skilled editor, Snowden is a mentor, training new employees on Avid. He has developed a highly-structured curriculum for the DC bureau. New hires, regardless of experience, all go through orientation with Snowden about the nuances of the network and the differentiating styles from show to show. He personally makes sure the pool of editors is up to speed and confident before being thrown into the deep end.

During COVID, Snowden was among the first to help the team pivot to test out remote equipment to be able to continue to edit shows under the new circumstances. His peers say he's kind and caring, and the COVID protocol was just another hurdle to clear for this team player. Calm under pressure, throw any assignment his way, and Snowden will get the job done without a single bead of sweat. He always volunteers to help and he's — without fail — overly prepared. He's the gold standard when it comes to editors.

GOLD CIRCLE – DOCUMENTARY

JON ALPERT KEIKO TSUNO

Filmmakers Jon Alpert and Keiko Tsuno are Co-Founders and Co-Executive Directors of Downtown Community Television Center, Inc.

(DCTV). Founded in 1972, DCTV has produced countless award-winning documentary productions, but also serves more than 15,000 people each year through youth media training programs, continuing education programs, documentary screenings, master classes and discussions.

Alpert received international acclaim for his intrepid work in Iraq, Nicaragua, Afghanistan, Cambodia, Vietnam, Cuba, the former Soviet Union, and the Philippines. More than a hundred of his documentaries and reports from across the United States and around the world have been widely broadcast. Tsuno is among the video pioneers of minority women.

The enormously influential storytellers have inspired generations of documentary filmmakers and journalists. Their work is expansive, and includes short-form news spots from war zones around the world, dating back to the 1970s, to deep-dive documentaries that chronicle the lives of people who are suffering from decades of drug addiction, or follows world leaders over the course of decades.

In addition to their prolific filmmaking careers, Alpert and Tsuno have dedicated themselves to empowering future generations of storytellers through free, comprehensive youth media training programs at DCTV, putting the cameras in the hands of diverse young New Yorkers and community members for five decades.

SILVER CIRCLE – DOCUMENTARY

DANIEL BIRMAN

Daniel H. Birman is an award-winning documentary filmmaker, journalism and documentary professor, and a visionary who pioneered the recognition of documentary television by the Television Academy through the Documentary Peer Group. Since 1978, his documentaries have tackled stories that impact a broad cross-section of people, including those often marginalized in mainstream media, and issues that affect all families and communities such as access for the disabled, the healthcare system, science and the mysteries in the universe, medical breakthroughs, and aviation. He's currently producing a breakthrough series on sustainability and climate change.

He formed Birman Productions in 1999, and in the intervening decades, he has directed and produced award-winning programs for a variety of networks and streamers. In 2001, Birman was invited to build a documentary program for the University of Southern California Annenberg School of Journalism. Over the course of 22 years, he has created an impressive and expansive body of classes that provide the backbone of the USC program, and developed documentary as an active journalistic practice at USC Annenberg.

Birman's almost 40-year career as a documentary filmmaker, a visionary leader at the Television Academy working on behalf of documentarians and the nonfiction community, and at the University of Southern California Annenberg School of Journalism have had a deep impact on the industry and the world.

LOIS VOSSEN

Lois Vossen has worked in documentary film and television for more than 33 years as an executive producer, producer, series producer, funder, festival executive, Television Academy Governor, mentor, champion of Diversity, Equity, Inclusion & Accessibility, and a stalwart advocate of independent filmmakers.

Vossen began her work in documentary making short films that profiled visiting poets and writers-in-residence when she was Program Director at The Loft, A Center for Poets & Writers in Minneapolis. She worked at the Sundance Institute as the Associate Managing Director of the Sundance Film Festival and Sundance Labs. Additionally while at Sundance, she created and programmed the Sundance Cinematheque, a film series at the Sundance Resort. As the Executive Producer of Independent Lens, she helped shepherd hundreds of documentaries from development through funding and production.

Perhaps Vossen's most important contribution to the documentary field is her unwavering support of filmmakers. She is known for providing editorial input while always focusing on the filmmaker's independent, artistic vision, and for her commitment to helping filmmakers find additional funding to close production gaps, her mentorship of emerging filmmakers, her championship of independent productions in the public media system, and for helping filmmakers navigate the ever-changing and often fraught film festival and distribution process. This mentorship is reflected in the number of former colleagues who once worked as Independent Lens staff and have gone on to become documentary filmmakers.

CHRISTOPHER WHITE

Documentarian Chris White is a dedicated and passionate professional, committed to filmmakers and the industry. His leadership at American Documentary is often relied upon as an institution within an institution, having seen the organization through many different leaders, and remaining a steady and ever-growing source of strong curation and PBS systems expertise.

As the Executive Producer of POV, White is dedicated and passionate about the films, filmmakers and industry. Having worked at this non-profit media arts organization for more than 20 years, White has presented more than 300 films for national broadcast on public television. Notable projects and partnerships over the years have included POV's Diverse Voices Project, providing co-production support and mentorship to emerging BIPOC filmmakers; and the Project VoiceScape Awards honoring young documentarians, produced in partnership with Adobe Youth Voices.

He is at the forefront of a decade-plus-long relationship with StoryCorps, bringing animated versions of their award-winning oral-history project to public television. And this year marks the sixth season of POV Shorts, showcasing the best in short-form non-fiction film.

Chris White is a generous and empathetic leader in the field. He has mentored young producers, supporting a diverse cohort of filmmakers engaged in groundbreaking work.
