INTRODUCING OUR NEW, ACTING HEAD OF NEWS & DOCUMENTARY EMMY® AWARDS, AMY SCHMELZER

A two-time graduate of Drake University with a BAJMC in Radio/Television Production and a Masters in Communication Leadership, Amy Schmelzer has worked in live television production since 1996. Starting as a graphic artist and Chyron operator, her career advanced into newscast directing — first on weekends and ending with what were then the highest-rated newscasts in the Des Moines market — KCCI 8 News at 6 and 10pm. Her skill at the directing craft garnered her six Regional Directing Emmys between 2010 and 2016.

In 2019, she assumed the position of news operations manager while continuing to cover periodic shifts on all shows as a director. In that role, she was responsible for all of the odds and ends of making sure that the news department's plans were executed: planning and executing remote productions; producing political debates, community affairs specials and sports content; coordinating quality control efforts between departments; supervising all things studio-related and, in her spare work time, leading a staff of ten directors and camera operators.

In 2025, Amy stepped back from local broadcasting and accepted a position with the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences as the Acting Head of News & Documentary Emmy Awards.

Amy also works as a freelancer in the sports broadcasting world, keeping the production tools in her toolbox sharp and scratching that creative, hands-on itch.

She has also served on the Drake University School of Journalism and Mass Communication's National Advisory Council and the Advisory Board for Iowa Central Community College's radio & television production program.

Welcome, Amy!

CHAIRMAN'S WELCOME

TERRY O'REILLY

Good evening!

On behalf of the National Academy of Television Arts & Sciences, our Directors and more than 18,000 members across the nation, I welcome you to the 46th Annual News & Documentary Emmy® Awards, from the Palladium in New York's iconic Times Square. This expanded two-night celebration of the best in our industry comes at a time when the work of our nation's broadcast journalists and documentarians has never been needed — nor appreciated — more.

In addition to tonight's Emmy festivities, we will also be honoring a pair of our industry's greats, with our Academy's Lifetime Achievement Awards: Al Roker, of NBC's Today Show, and documentary filmmaker Jon Else. And we will welcome 11 new inductees to the prestigious NATAS Gold and Silver Circles: honoring their long service to our industry and to our broadcast community.

I would ask you to join me in thanking the hundreds of industry professionals who volunteered their time and talents to evaluate the more than 2200 productions submitted for consideration in 66 categories this year. Please also join me in thanking our Academy staff for their hard work in organizing and staging this year's celebration; it is once again a truly remarkable undertaking.

Good luck to all those being honored this evening — nominees and award-winners alike — and thank you for being a part of this evening's celebration.

PRESIDENT'S WELCOME

ADAM SHARP

Good evening and welcome to the 46th Annual News and Documentary Emmy® Awards. While our ceremonies take place during a time of ongoing upheaval and change in our industry, our Academy also reflects on a period of transition.

Our longtime Head of News and Documentary, David Winn, retired from NATAS at the end of 2024. He led the competition with integrity and a careful focus on equity and detail for two decades.

The mantle has now passed to Acting Head of News and Documentary Amy Schmelzer, who joins us after nearly 30 years as a Senior Director and Operations executive at CBS affiliate KCCI-TV in Des Moines. A former National Trustee and member of the NATAS Board of Directors, Amy played a crucial role in the recent restructuring of the Academy's governance and the creation of our national membership program.

We also welcome to our national Board CBS News Anchor Lindsey Reiser and Megan Chao of Birman Productions as peer group designees representing the news and documentary communities, respectively.

There's no more important time in recent memory for our industry to unite in mutual support as one community, bound by the shared pursuit of excellence in broadcast journalism and documentary storytelling. The goal of our national membership initiative is to build that community brick by brick. I hope you will take the opportunity to reach out to our Head of Membership, Brent Stanton, to share your thoughts on how our Academy can create such value: membership@theemmys.tv.

Together, we may ensure that the Emmys not only recognize excellence in stories that have already been broadcast, but also represent, defend and foster continued excellence — and the opportunity to pursue it — for years to come. We hope you join us. members.theemmys.tv

AL ROKER

A LIFE IN WEATHER, A LEGACY OF WARMTH

Beloved broadcaster, climate communicator and cultural fixture Al Roker reflects on a career shaped by curiosity, gratitude and a mission to inform and uplift.

by Hillary Povar and Dustin Smith
of Smithhouse Strategy

“It’s humbling.” Those are the first words Al Roker reaches for when asked what this Lifetime Achievement honor means to him.

“You don’t get into this or do this for recognition,” he says. “Other than maybe your parents, it’s not something you think about — and it’s certainly not something you think you deserve. But it’s a real honor, and one you don’t take lightly.”

That humility has been a hallmark of Roker’s decades-long career as one of America’s most trusted and beloved broadcasters. Since joining NBC’s TODAY in 1996 — and even long before that — Roker has helped millions of viewers greet the day with warmth, humor and a sense of connection, whether covering breaking weather or showcasing inspiring human stories. He is also a proud advocate for serious climate reporting, a passionate creator and a constant student of the craft.

AL ROKER IS ONE OF THE HOSTS FOR THE MACY’S THANKSGIVING DAY PARADE

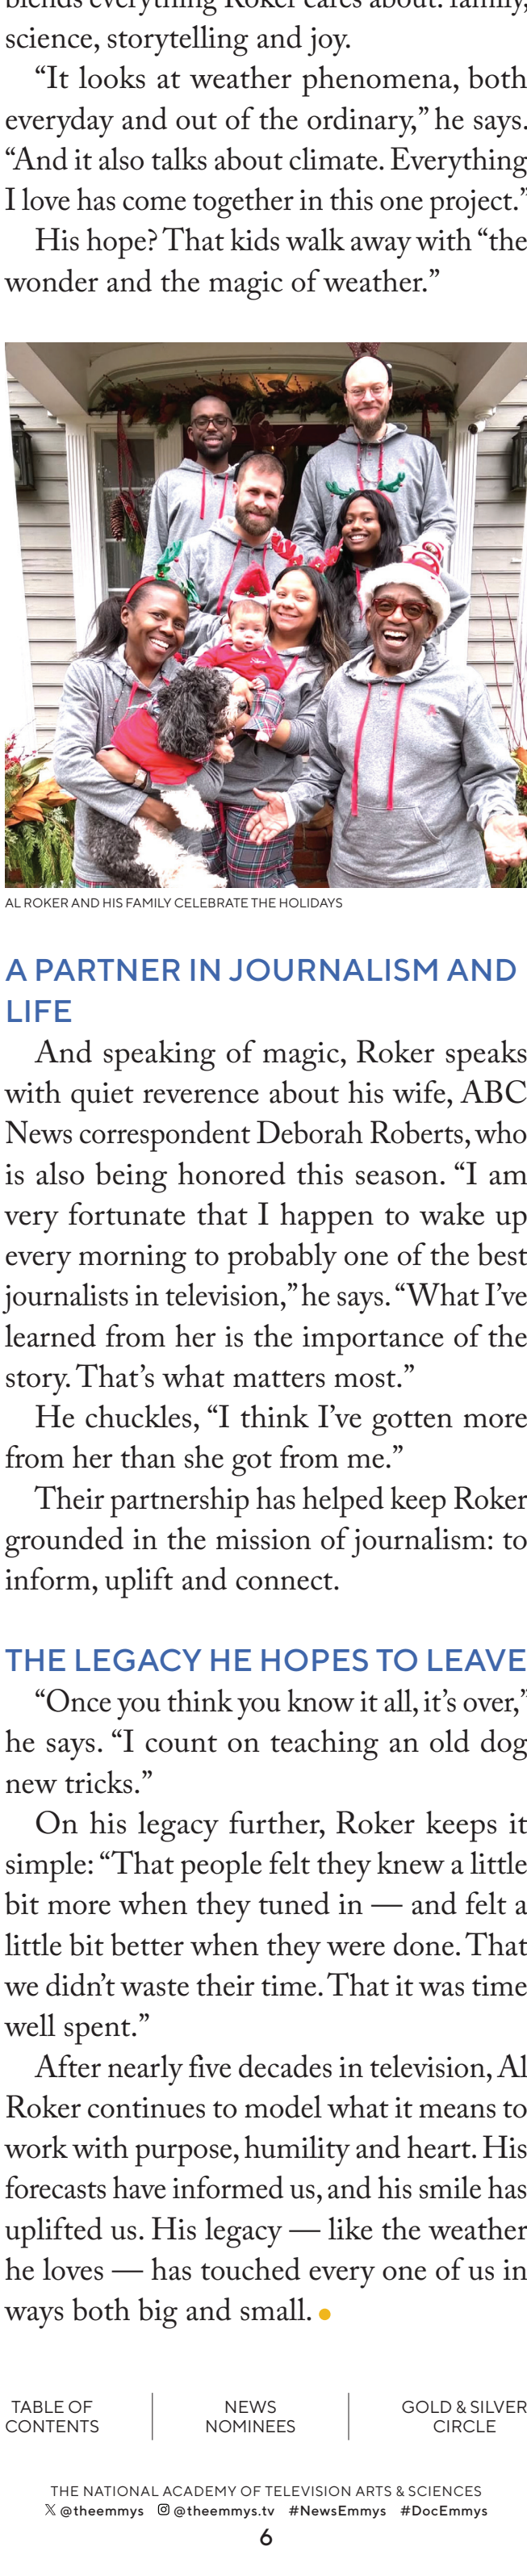

From the start, Roker’s journey was shaped by passion and persistence. He began while still a student at SUNY Oswego, working weekends as a weatherman in Syracuse. Afterward, he held positions in Washington, D.C. and Cleveland before landing in New York in 1983 at WNBC, where he advanced through the ranks.

“I was very proud of doing local news,” he recalls. “If that had been my whole career, that would’ve been more than amazing.” And, “I still love local TV,” he says. “When I travel, I tune in to the local news. I always come away with something I think, ‘Ooh, I could use that.’”

But fate — and a mentor — had other plans. Roker started filling in for his hero, Willard Scott, in the late 80s. “To get to fill in through my mentor, the guy who’s like a second dad to me — that was amazing,” he says. “And then, when he decided it was time to step back... I was like, ‘What? Huh?’” he laughs.

That transition marked the beginning of a tenure that would stretch across decades and generations. For Roker, the TODAY show has become more than just a job; it’s a defining institution. “It’s part of the American fabric,” he says. “As far as I’m concerned, TODAY is the morning show of record. It always has been.”

Working alongside legends like Bryant Gumbel, Jane Pauley, Katie Couric and many others, Roker became an essential part of viewers’ daily lives. But it never felt inevitable. “People say, ‘This must be your dream job,’” he says. “Not really, because I never dreamt I’d be part of this. Every day of this tenure still feels pretty amazing.”

SCIENCE WITH A SMILE

Roker’s broadcasting talent has always been his ability to make the science of weather both serious and joyful. While he downplays his own technical credentials — “I’m not a meteorologist,” he says with a grin — he has long championed presenting weather with both scientific rigor and emotional clarity.

“You can be the most accurate, most scientific person in the world,” he says, “but if you put people to sleep, nobody’s going to hear it.”

He cites the NBC climate unit and the network’s sustained support for climate crisis coverage as one of his proudest accomplishments. “I think our climate situation is the defining issue of our existence right now,” he says. “The fact that we started doing this years ago — and never got pushback, in fact it was encouraged — that’s something I’m very proud of.”

At the same time, Roker’s innovative spirit has kept weather reporting engaging and accessible for new generations. Rokerthon — a record-breaking series of stunts that included 34 hours of continuous weather coverage to live forecasts from all 50 states — made headlines and reminded viewers that weather can be a shared, joyful experience.

“I’d love to take credit for it, but Willard really set that tone years ago,” Roker says. “We’ve just tried to carry that spirit forward.”

BEYOND THE MAP

Roker has always brought more than forecasts to the screen. He has covered major events — from hurricanes and earthquakes to political milestones — and is equally at home conducting a soulful interview or raising millions for charity.

He is also an accomplished author and producer. His company, Al Roker Entertainment, has created content across various genres and platforms. However, perhaps the creative pursuit closest to his heart is his upcoming animated PBS KIDS series, Weather Hunters.

“My dream job was to be an animator for Walt Disney,” he says. “I’ve always loved animation.” Weather Hunters — a science-forward, family-focused show about a weather forecaster named Al Hunter — blends everything Roker cares about: family, science, storytelling and joy.

“It looks at weather phenomena, both everyday and out of the ordinary,” he says. “And it also talks about climate. Everything I love has come together in this one project.”

His hope? That kids walk away with “the wonder and the magic of weather.”

Their partnership has helped keep Roker grounded in the mission of journalism: to inform, uplift and connect.

On his legacy further, Roker keeps it simple: “That people felt they knew a little bit more when they tuned in — and felt a little bit better when they were done. That we didn’t waste their time. That it was time well spent.”

After nearly five decades in television, Al Roker continues to model what it means to work with purpose, humility and heart. His forecasts have informed us, and his smile has uplifted us. His legacy — like the weather he loves — has touched every one of us in ways both big and small. ●

And speaking of magic, Roker speaks with quiet reverence about his wife, ABC News correspondent Deborah Roberts, who is also being honored this season. “I am very fortunate that I happen to wake up every morning to probably one of the best journalists in television,” he says. “What I’ve learned from her is the importance of the story. That’s what matters most.”

He chuckles, “I think I’ve gotten more from her than she got from me.”

THE LEGACY HE HOPES TO LEAVE

“Once you think you know it all, it’s over,” he says. “I count on teaching an old dog new tricks.”

He chuckles, “I think I’ve gotten more from her than she got from me.”

Their partnership has helped keep Roker grounded in the mission of journalism: to inform, uplift and connect.

On his legacy further, Roker keeps it simple: “That people felt they knew a little bit more when they tuned in — and felt a little bit better when they were done. That we didn’t waste their time. That it was time well spent.”

After nearly five decades in television, Al Roker continues to model what it means to work with purpose, humility and heart. His forecasts have informed us, and his smile has uplifted us. His legacy — like the weather he loves — has touched every one of us in ways both big and small. ●

And speaking of magic, Roker speaks with quiet reverence about his wife, ABC News correspondent Deborah Roberts, who is also being honored this season. “I am very fortunate that I happen to wake up every morning to probably one of the best journalists in television,” he says. “What I’ve learned from her is the importance of the story. That’s what matters most.”

He chuckles, “I think I’ve gotten more from her than she got from me.”

JON ELSE

A LIFE BEHIND THE LENS, ILLUMINATING AMERICA

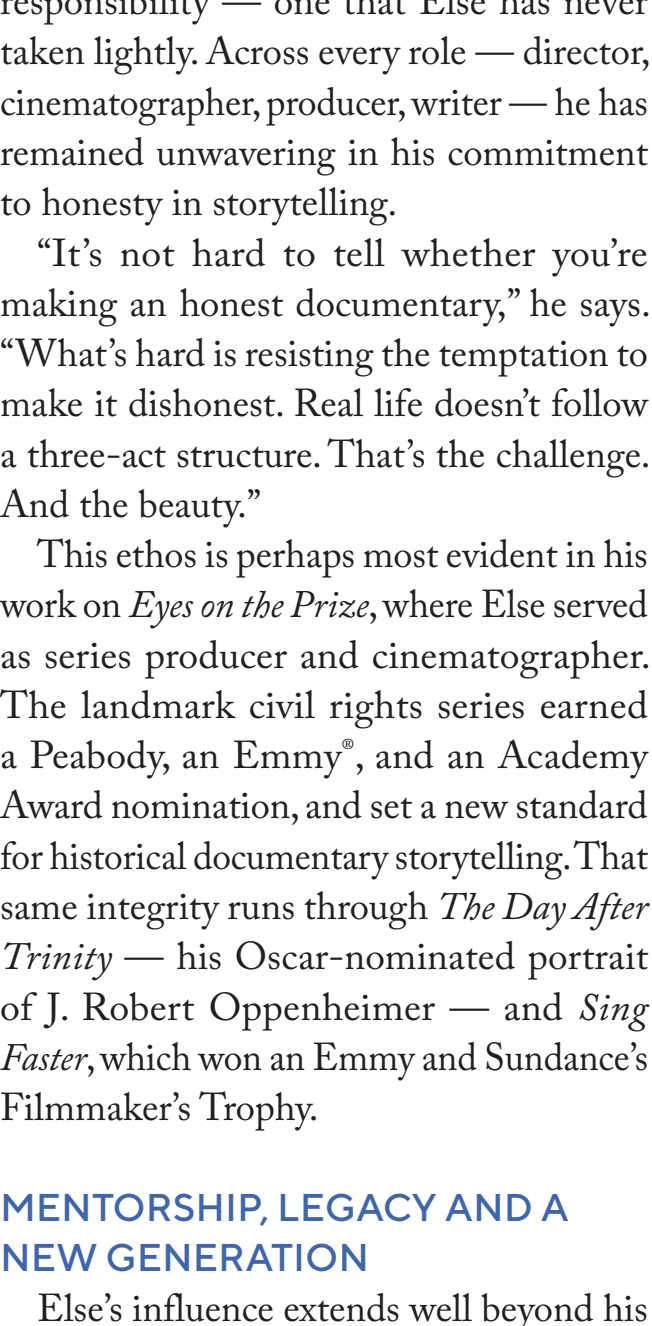

by Hillary Povar and Dustin Smith
of Smithhouse Strategy

Jon Else has taken audiences from backstage at the San Francisco Opera to the front lines of America’s defining movements. He was the series producer and cinematographer for the landmark Eyes on the Prize, and the director behind such seminal works as The Day After Trinity, Cadillac Desert, Yosemite: The Fate of Heaven and Sing Faster: The Stagehands’ Ring Cycle. His latest film, Land of Gold, a sweeping exploration of the California Gold Rush, premiered at Telluride and aired nationally on PBS’s Great Performances in 2024.

For more than five decades, Else has chronicled the American story — not the easy version, but the full, complicated, wondrous one. Through a body of work that spans nuclear history, civil rights, the arts and the untamed landscapes of the American West, Else has brought clarity and craft to some of our most urgent and enduring questions. As a filmmaker, cinematographer, teacher and author, he has shaped not only what we see, but how we see it.

With this work — and so much more — Else has helped define the language of documentary film. And he’s done it while staying rooted in what he calls “this big, crazy, wonderful, diverse American culture. With all its shame and its glory, its ordeals and triumphs.”

Though known for his visual sensibility, Else sees his films as an interplay between sound and image. “The work is not just what you see — it’s what you feel,” he explains. Whether filming a Tupac documentary on the Las Vegas Strip or capturing forest fires at night, it’s often the sound that lingers. “A fire at night — it looks like a sculpture, but it sounds like a freight train,” he says. “It becomes immersive. That’s where the emotional power lives.”

EYES ON THE PRIZE WITH DIRECTOR CALLIE CROSBLEY FOR PBS

DISCOVERING THE POWER – AND RESPONSIBILITY – OF THE REAL

Jon Else didn’t grow up thinking documentary filmmaking was a career path — because, as he puts it with a laugh, “It wasn’t one.” After studying English at UC Berkeley and earning a master’s degree in Communication from Stanford, he initially envisioned a future in narrative film. But after several years on low-budget features, he realized where his heart — and his eye — truly belonged.

“I didn’t want to spend the rest of my life on B-grade movies watching B-grade actors deliver B-grade dialogue,” he says. “The real world is just so fascinatingly, unpredictably eccentric. And in documentary, you don’t get second takes. You have to get it right in the moment.”

That immediacy became a calling. While filming a Willie Nelson concert early in his career, Else found himself on stage, camera in hand, singing along in front of the crowd. “I’d disappeared into the scene,” he says. “That’s the magic. You fall into a fever dream and become part of the story.”

JON ELSE WITH FILM PRINT OF PBS CADILLAC DESERT

With that power, though, came a responsibility — one that Else has never taken lightly. Across every role — director, cinematographer, producer, writer — he has remained unwavering in his commitment to honesty in storytelling.

“It’s not hard to tell whether you’re making an honest documentary,” he says. “What’s hard is resisting the temptation to make it dishonest. Real life doesn’t follow a three-act structure. That’s the challenge. And the beauty.”

This ethos is perhaps most evident in his work on Eyes on the Prize, where Else served as series producer and cinematographer. The landmark civil rights series earned a Peabody, an Emmy®, and an Academy Award nomination, and set a new standard for historical documentary storytelling. That same integrity runs through The Day After Trinity — his Oscar-nominated portrait of J. Robert Oppenheimer — and Sing Faster, which won an Emmy and Sundance’s Filmmaker’s Trophy.

MENTORSHIP, LEGACY AND A NEW GENERATION

Else’s influence extends well beyond his own projects. As director of the documentary program at UC Berkeley’s Graduate School of Journalism for nearly two decades, he mentored a generation of filmmakers, many of whom are now charting their own paths through the ever-evolving documentary landscape.

TEACHING AT U. C. BERKELEY SCHOOL OF JOURNALISM

“I don’t want my students to do what we did,” he says. “My generation — Pennebaker, Maysles, Kopple, Burns — we invented a lot. But they’re inventing new stuff now. Style anarchy. It’s liberating.”

He emphasizes that the student-teacher relationship is a two-way street. “You learn as much from them as they do from you,” he says. “Every day I walked out of class, I felt lighter. It was an extraordinary gift.”

Still, he’s clear-eyed about the challenges they face. “It’s always been hard to fund documentaries. And it’s still hard, especially for oddball, pathbreaking work by young filmmakers. But places like ITVS and public broadcasting continue to be lifelines.”

In addition to teaching, Else has used his platform to uplift emerging talent as an executive producer on acclaimed films like The Force (Peter Nicks) and The Island President (Jon Shenk). These partnerships reflect his deep belief in passing the torch and clearing a path for those coming up behind him.

AN AUTHOR AND A MACARTHUR FELLOW

Else is also the author of True South: Henry Hampton and ‘Eyes on the Prize’ (Viking, 2017), and his next book, Frenchman Flat — a history of nuclear testing — will be published by Harvard University Press in 2025. A recipient of a MacArthur Fellowship, he has also been honored with multiple Peabody, DuPont and Emmy Awards for writing, directing, producing and cinematography.

His work has reached places he never anticipated: government offices, budget meetings and even CIA archives. “We later heard that one of our nuclear films was screened at Los Alamos,” he says. “And that The Day After Trinity was purchased by the CIA. That tells you something about the quiet ripple effects of this work.”

He’s not just recording history — he’s influencing it.

SUPERBOWL 2001 FOR HBO

WHAT THE LIFETIME ACHIEVEMENT EMMY MEANS

The call notifying Else of his award came as a surprise. “I assumed I was one of 50 recipients,” he says, chuckling. But the recognition resonates deeply. “I hope it gives some courage to people in the trenches. That there is payoff — sometimes at the end of the road, but often along the way.”

He’s looking forward to joining fellow honorees and former students in New York. “We need reminders that this is worth doing,” he says. “These ceremonies, like Sundance or Tribeca, are our block parties. And right now, we need to come together.”

LOOKING BACK – AND AHEAD

If he could offer advice to his younger self, it would be practical: stay fit. “Documentary filmmaking is physical. You need the stamina of an athlete or a dancer, because the cameras aren’t getting any lighter.”

He’d also remind himself of something less obvious: “You need a high tolerance for uncertainty. We don’t make boring films. But the price we pay is unpredictability — about what’s coming next, what story will find us, or whether we’ll find work at all. I’ve had just as many projects fail as succeed. But I never considered doing anything else.” ●

NATAS FOUNDATION SCHOLARSHIP RECIPIENTS

MORGAN HAWKINS

Douglas W. Mummert Scholarship recipient

After racking up a slew of awards, accolades and film festival screenings as a high school student, Morgan Hawkins now has her sights set on a journalism and documentary filmmaking career. She earned widespread honors for a documentary she co-produced with Ajani Obaseki, profiling a man named Michael Woody, who was serving prison time for murder and burglary. The documentary highlighted a prison program that rehabilitates inmates through education, and the impact the program had on Woody's life.

The project was awarded Best Broadcast Feature Story at the All American High School Film Festival in New York, and won Best Non-fiction/Documentary Short at the Anacostia Youth Media Festival. She's a recent graduate of District of Columbia International School, where she studied news and documentary production and helped launch Dragon TV – the school's student news channel. She plans to attend Ithaca College in the fall, and pursue a career in broadcast journalism and documentary filmmaking. One day, she hopes to own her own production company.

The Douglas W. Mummert Scholarship is awarded to a student pursuing a career in any aspect of the television industry with a focus on community service, and is administered by The NATAS Foundation.

TALAN COLLINS

Mike Wallace Memorial Scholarship recipient

The first time Talan Collins walked into a newsroom, he knew the sound: Phones ringing, keyboards clicking, pens tapping were the audio track of an urgency he carried in himself. It sounded like his own need to seek out the truth, and to air the points of view of voices seldom heard.

Talan recently graduated from Columbia River High School in Vancouver, Washington. He is the recipient of the Mike Wallace Scholarship, funded by CBS and administered by The NATAS Foundation.

In high school Talan joined a handful of students to change their school's television news division to a multiplatform organization reaching thousands within and beyond the school's walls. As anchor of The Rapids Report, Talan interviewed local leaders and state officials and moderated civic panels, looking through the lenses of school district issues and student concerns. His reporting, he says, made him feel empowered to "hold truth to power and advance meaningful dialog in my community."

Talan will attend the George Washington University beginning in September of 2025.

2025 SPORTS GOLD AND SILVER CIRCLE INDUCTEES

Gold & Silver Circle inductees have set standards of achievement we all hope to emulate. A professional society of honor, and one of the highest tributes bestowed by NATAS, the Gold Circle recognizes professionals who have performed distinguished service within the television industry for at least 50 years. Silver Circle inductees are recognized for their enduring contributions over 25 years or more. These individuals are selected for more than their longevity — they have made an indelible impact on the vitality of our industry and those who work in it every day.

GOLD CIRCLE NEWS

MARC BURSTEIN

Marc Burstein is an Emmy®- and Peabody-winning producer whose 45-year career at ABC News helped shape how millions experienced history live. Starting as a page in 1975, he rose through the ranks to become Executive Producer of Good Morning America and head of Special Events. There, he led landmark coverage of 9/11, papal transitions, royal weddings and seven presidential elections. Revered for his steady leadership and editorial instinct, he earned the trust of anchors like Peter Jennings and Diane Sawyer. Even while battling cancer, Marc directed the 2020 presidential debate viewed by over 70 million Americans. He has earned 20 Emmys, Edward R. Murrow and duPont awards, and the admiration of peers who describe him as strategic, generous and grounded — a producer who made history feel personal.

MARTHA TEICHNER

Martha Teichner is a longtime correspondent for CBS Sunday Morning, where for over 30 years she has delivered elegant, insightful reporting from more than 50 countries. Beginning her career in Grand Rapids, Michigan — first in radio and at WZZM-TV — she later honed her craft at television affiliates in Miami and Chicago before joining CBS News in 1977. Renowned for her literary voice and deep empathy, Martha has reported from war zones, covered political crises and explored the arts, culture and personal stories that underscore her unwavering belief in journalism's power to move hearts and minds. Her award-winning work has earned her multiple Emmys, a James Beard Award and additional honors including an Alfred duPont-Columbia Award, the Robert F. Kennedy Journalism Award and the Gracies Lifetime Achievement Award. Martha is also the author of the New York Times bestselling memoir When Harry Met Minnie, a tender reflection on grief and connection. An alumna of Wellesley College and the University of Chicago, she remains a vibrant and influential presence in broadcast journalism.

NEWS

AKRAM ABI-HANNA

Akram Abi-Hanna began his journalism career in Beirut in 1982 and joined ABC News a year later, quickly rising from local hire to trusted international field producer. Born in Kfarmatta, Lebanon, he brought cultural fluency and personal bravery to his reporting, covering global flashpoints from the Iraq War and Arab Spring to Fukushima and Native American activism. After relocating to New York in 1984, Akram became a fixture on ABC's international team, admired for his calm under pressure and his ability to humanize conflict. Over four decades, he worked alongside legendary anchors while mentoring a new generation of producers and camera crews — carrying forward the legacy of his mentor, Tony Hirashiki. His reputation for grace, insight and dependability has made him a valued colleague and friend, both in the field and beyond.

CATER LEE

Cater Lee is Vice President of News and Content at Spectrum News 1, where she helped launch Southern California's 24-hour local news network. Under her leadership, the newsroom has earned 79 journalism awards and a rare "center" rating from Allsides for unbiased reporting. A former investigative reporter and Emmy-winning anchor at KNBC, KCBS and KCAL, she has also held senior programming roles at E.W. Scripps and Turning Point Productions. Cater now mentors the next generation of journalists through Spectrum's MMJ bootcamp and as a USC instructor. She recently traveled to Guatemala to cover global press freedom and serves on the board of Freedom House. Colleagues praise her for creating a collaborative newsroom built on trust, clarity and care — values she brings to every story and every journalist she guides.
